DEDICATED TO

Miss Ethel J. Whitley

While the class watches intently,
Miss Whitley explains a basic geometric concept.

Patient . . .

striving to help students grasp the problems;

Conscientious . . .

providing up-to-date education material;

Sympathetic . . .

conducting seventh period study sessions;

Understanding . . .

listening to each student's problem;

Unselfish . . .

devoting herself to the best interest of students.

Because she fulfills in our estimation the qualities of an educator, we proudly dedicate the 1962 Mustang to MISS ETHEL J. WHITLEY.

In answering a mathematical problem, Miss Whitley encourages a student to see the solution from several aspects.

SCHOLARSHIP

CITIZENSHIP

Scholarship means working to one's ability intellectually

The personal interview is required for many scholarships.

Scholarship reveals itself at Myers Park not only through the winning of coveted scholarships but in many other distinct areas.

Recognition for intellectual achievement revealed that many students had striven for quality while at Myers Park. The wide range of scholarships extended from the National Merit Scholarship to the P.T.A. Scholarship. Students who received these awards gained outward and in many cases valuable recognition for their attainment.

Induction into Myers Park's chapter of the National Honor Society climaxed for the top fifteen per cent of the senior class three years of outstanding achievement in both scholastic and extra-curricular endeavors.

But scholarship in its true sense is not recognition, but earnest incentive to learn. The scholars of the school could be found in the library reading poetry selections for pure enjoyment, in the laboratory after school delving into the realms of natural and physical sciences, or generally supplementing the classroom lecture. It is, then, this fundamental desire to exercise the mind to one's ability that is scholarship.

Building advanced projects in a field such as radio, a student supplements his knowledge with valuable independent research.

Only with responsible guidance can a club function properly.

Leadership denotes participation in worthwhile activities

Leadership is exemplified at Myers Park not only in areas as varied as officers of clubs, student council, or team captains, but also in other capacities.

To motivate individuals, whether it be an athletic team, student council representatives, or members of the Engineers Club requires capable persons who can unite a group into a well-functioning body. An officer must be willing to devote his time and subordinate other interests for the betterment of his organization but primarily for the advancement of the school. A leader displays an example worthy of emulation by others.

But leadership is, in essence, the ability to merge the efforts of a group to fully realize a purposeful objective. A true leader does not try to perform all the tasks but instills in his followers a desire to serve willingly and effectively.

Citizenship is service to school and community life

Citizenship is evidenced by Myers Parkers not only on campus, but also in other areas of social activity.

Recognition for two of the best citizens at school comes through the annual presentation of citizenship awards. But exemplary citizens manifest their respect and courtesy for friends, faculty, and other individuals in the student lounge, the classroom, and the basketball court. Estimable sportsmanship, consideration for the property of others, and a helpful attitude toward others are the fundamentals of citizenship. Citizenship is, in effect, an unselfish, well-intentioned attitude toward other individuals.

Council sponsors dances,

Operating in close contact with students, faculty, and administration, the student council governed campus activities. Delegates to the legislative body were homeroom representatives and committee chairmen who formulated projects which encouraged unity within the student body. Serving as liaisons between the organization and students, the representatives reported decisions and received suggestions for future council discussion and action. Resulting from one of these suggestions was the formation of a standing Elections Committee. Signifying their membership, the homeroom representatives, committee chairmen, and officers purchased sterling silver student council pins. Myers Park was chosen the site of the 1962-63 State Student Council Convention.

clean-up campaign, planting seedlings to beautify campus

Dances were money-making projects for the group. Semi-formal dances were given at Homecoming and Christmas; to highlight School Spirit Week, a Sadie Hawkins Dance. During basketball season the Council improved relations with visiting schools by sponsoring open houses after several games. Preliminary plans were completed to expand the Honor Code into an Honor System. The handbook aided the orientation of sophomores and new students. Discussions led by committee chairmen in tenth grade homerooms added to the unifying force stimulated by the student council. The American Field Service Committee sponsored foreign exchange students attending Myers Park and chose finalists to represent the school in competition for scholarships to go abroad.

Assuming leadership in many areas, the legislative body issued charters to all school-sponsored clubs and required each to perform a minimum of two service projects. The House and Grounds Committee conducted a clean-up campaign, awarding a money prize to the winning class. To beautify the campus, the Council sponsored the planting of seedlings and shrubs. Billy Clark initiated the policy that the student council president deliver morning intercom announcements. The organization decided to maintain a senior trophy room in the new auditorium in which will be placed photographs and newspaper articles concerning outstanding achievements of each graduating class.

MyerSpark brings news, editorials before student body

Publishing the school newspaper every three weeks, the MyerSpark staff worked long and hard. Sixth period was devoted to preparing each issue by editors, reporters, and typists. Subscriptions were included in English instructional fees, thus entitling every student to receive a copy. Distribution took place in the homerooms and at lunch.

Because of the outstanding ad sales campaign led by Susan Barnette and Caroline Martin, Business Managers, special issues were printed at Christmas and graduation. Most school clubs and organizations as well as business concerns bought ads. Also, through this salesmanship the entire financial standing of the paper was improved.

Organization of the staff differed from that of previous years. Reporters were not placed on definite staffs but wrote for different editors. Features Editor Suzanne Bost received feature stories and poems from many minor staff members. Richy Burg, Sports Editor, assigned articles which made more accurate accounts of athletic events available. News Editor Bette Katzenmoyer was in charge of write-ups covering all school news. All reporters were responsible for turning in some article for each issue. Typists Gale Hunter and Barbara Dowd prepared the copy for press.

Judy Wesley, reporter, and News Editor Bette Katzenmoyer proof an article for publication.

During sixth period, staff members Gale Hunter and Barry Sklar sort articles for layout as Caroline Elliot and Barbara Dowd check spelling in write-ups, preparing an issue to go to press.

When the news-gathering was finished, Co-Editors Mary Quern and Jim Hemphill, aided by Mr. Sizer, began their work of making paste-ups which consisted of arranging the columns and selecting appropriate headlines. In this form the 'Spark was taken to press.

Besides these journalistic activities, the 'Spark also helped with other school functions. A suggestion box was maintained outside the publications room for students wishing to offer ideas to the student council. As a money-making project a Daisy Mae and L'il Abner contest was conducted in the week preceding the Sadie Hawkins Dance.

1961 Mustang wins awards;

Admiring Mustang awards are John Apperson, Business Manager; Mr. Browne and Mrs. Cohan, advisors; and Walter Graham, Editor.

Early in September, thirty-nine Mustang staff members began planning and working to edit another All-American yearbook for Myers Park. Walter Graham, Editor, and Mr. Browne and Mrs. Cohan, Advisors, introduced to the major staff novel ideas to incorporate in the 1962 annual. The entire book was printed on tinted paper, and a special ink was used in the opening section. The theme of the Mustang carried out Myers Park's desire for the renewal of unity in scholarship, leadership, and citizenship.

Business Manager John Apperson, assisted by Treasurer Jan Gaskell and an enlarged business staff, sold ads to raise money for the production of the Mustang. For additional funds they initiated a more extensive sale of sponsorships. Homeroom representatives served as salesmen of annuals and class pictures.

Section editors toiled to complete the Mustang by the deadline. Layouts were drawn, pictures were taken, and copy was written to present an informative and appealing overview of the year. Assisting them were the minor staff members who increased their knowledge of yearbook production by working with the major staff.

Engineers build shelter; Pen Pushers sell scatter pillows

To provide an increased understanding of the various branches of science and engineering was the purpose of Myers Park's Engineers club. Assisted by Mr. Walker, advisor, the club organized and sponsored the annual Science Fair. They designed and constructed a fallout shelter to accommodate the entire club.

Preparing high school girls for secretarial careers was the chief aim of the Pen Pushers club. Aside from their diligent shorthand and typing practice, the girls profited from talks by several businessmen. To increase their treasury, they sold M.P. scatter pillows.

F.T.A. assists teachers; F.H.A. learns art of homemaking

Girls interested in teaching found the Future Teachers of America program helpful in their preparation for a career. This year the members served as assistants to the teachers; they helped with grading papers in addition to learning how to construct and give tests to students. The club compiled a scrapbook for the school, consisting of a record of all student activities. At the county and state meetings the members exchanged ideas with clubs from other schools. They honored the faculty on Teacher Appreciation Day in February. Through its program the F.T.A. encouraged interest in teaching.

Desiring to prepare themselves for careers as housewives, the Future Homemakers of America sought to increase their knowledge of the art of homemaking. They practiced making flower arrangements and original Christmas decorations. To raise funds for Christmas gifts for a needy family, the members sponsored a paper drive. A guest speaker discussed care of the hair and skin and demonstrated types of hairstyles and make-up techniques; another speaker talked with the group about profitable careers in the field of Home Economics. In cooperation with the Foods classes the F.H.A. honored the teachers at a Christmas tea.

Functioning as an active branch of the American Red Cross, the Myers Park High School Red Cross chapter began the year with a successful membership drive. Donations to support the year's activities were collected by representatives working in their homerooms.

Most projects were on a national level or in cooperation with other Mecklenburg county schools. As a result of the first of these projects, Myers Park's exchange students were able to make recordings to send to their families at Christmas. Another of these joint projects was preparing Red Cross gift boxes; cartons were filled with small toys and personal grooming items, then sent to orphanages and nurseries in the United States and overseas.

Members Lucy Dulin, Pat Hemby, and Jean Byrd prepare Red Cross gift boxes to be sent overseas.

Doing their part to improve world relations, the members filled a large chest with towels, blankets, and canned goods to be sent to rescue units in disaster areas. To complete the year's work, scrapbooks containing pictures of school and students were exchanged with many South American high schools.

Advised by Mrs. Burgess, members of the Distributive Education club continued academic work while learning of business and advertising through experience in various jobs. Besides allowing students to learn better methods of business, the group prepared displays of merchandise in the Student Center showcases. Sponsoring "Good Grooming Week" was the main project of the club. This week was culminated by a fashion show in which students modeled clothes from local merchants.

Service projects for community and school marked another year of service for the Key Club and Girl Ambassadors' Club.

First semester activities for the Key Club included providing corsages for the varsity cheerleaders during football season, cleaning the school flags, sponsoring a family at Christmas, and the annual compiling of the Key Club student directory. A new cover design incorporating the Myers Park seal was used.

Accomplishments of GAC benefit both school, community

To improve public relations, the Key Club continued its work by co-sponsoring with the senior Hi-Y an open house after Myers Park's home basketball game with South. Selling Mustang license plates, members aided in boosting school spirit.

Making and selling tassels for football games was the first of many projects for the Girl Ambassadors' Club. Early in the fall the club gave their annual New Girls' Tea, decorated the Student Center for a football game, and sold potato chips.

Christmas was an active time. Presenting the yearly teachers' banquet highlighted the season, followed by decorating a campus tree, yuletide caroling, and giving a party for children at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Extending their service to benefit the community further, the Ambassadors aided the March of Dimes, Heart Fund, and Easter Seal drives.

Y-Teens support needy family

Myers Park's Y-Teen and Hi-Y clubs, sponsored by the YWCA and YMCA, contributed to the welfare of the school and the community by working together in fellowship.

Senior Y-Teens were assured of an enthusiastic membership through the use of a newly adopted point system. To add color and spirit they decorated the halls and goal posts during football season. The club distributed Halloween favors to hospital children and sponsored a needy family during Christmas. The energetic Junior Y-Teens also decorated for games and sponsored a needy family. They participated in the city-wide potato chip drive to raise money for a new YWCA. Bravely withstanding the cold, the club sold the traditional chrysanthemums at Homecoming.

Preliminary plans for the Senior Hi-Y began during the summer at the Blue Ridge Hi-Y camp. The club sent two busloads of students to the Asheville football game and sponsored a fall "hop." To display Mustang hospitality the boys constructed large plywood plaques with the names of all the schools in the Western Conference and hung them in the gym. The Juniors also gained knowledge at the Hi-Y camp. They boosted spirit by decorating the halls and raised money for the Inter-Club Scholarship by holding their annual car wash.

N.H.S. assist guests at College Night, Back to School P.T.A.

Myers Park's chapter of the National Honor Society upheld its reputation as the members fulfilled the qualifications on which they were chosen: service, leadership, scholarship, and character. On this basis twenty-two seniors were selected at the impressive fall ceremony as the second five per cent of the senior class.

In the spring the final five per cent of the senior class and the first five per cent of the junior class were tapped.

Assisting at school functions, the group acted as guides on College Night and at the Back to School P.T.A.

Students broadened their scope of learning through membership in the foreign language clubs. Each club held stimulating programs to strengthen the classroom knowledge of its members.

French students proved their writing and acting talent as they presented original French plays. They displayed a French nativity scene during Christmas.

Latin Week was the highlight of Latin club activities. With a slave auction, plays, and the annual banquet, the members proved that Latin is not dead. The club honored Virgil at a birthday party in his memory, and sponsored one of the basketball sock hops.

Spanish club members learned about Spanish and European customs from students who spoke to them. At their Christmas party they celebrated with traditional Spanish dancing and by breaking the traditional pinata.

Latin club members Raleigh Shoemaker, Bobby Schworm, and Skip Motley portray a Roman version of "To Tell the Truth."

Debate Society members enter regional, state competition

Having as its purpose the encouragement of skillful debating at Myers Park, the Debate Society brought credit to the school by the performance of its members in various forensic contests.

During the first semester, the activities emphasized research on subjects to be debated in spring matches. Club meetings featured discussions led by the officers on techniques of skillful debating.

Practice debates were held in the latter part of January, allowing members to perfect their presentations. In February the competition began. Teams were entered in several contests and festivals, including the state-wide contest, the South-Eastern Debating League at Emory University, and festivals at Wake Forest and Winthrop Colleges.

Practice debates allow members to perfect speeches to serve as criteria for choosing entries in contests. Margaret James, Jan Wuertenberger, and Caryl Rehm.

"You Can't Take It with You," a light comedy in three acts, was the first presentation of the Limelighters. To accommodate the large audience, the play was given in the auditorium of Myers Park Elementary School. Dianne Harris took the leading role, acting opposite Tommy Cavalaris. Student directors Sheila Roth and Nadine Winton worked hard with the group's advisor Miss McInnes on the production.

Programs for the meetings consisted of discussions on the mechanics of presenting a drama. First semester pledges became members in January after a brief initiation. Casting and rehearsing four one-act plays for production in the Spring began in February. "Gray Bread," "The Violin Maker of Cremona," "Antic Spring," and "Wedded but No Wife" were the plays chosen for this presentation.

Choir performs at luncheon; presents Christmas concert

Increasing its number of performances, the A Cappella Choir, directed by Mr. Carl Cronstedt, had an active year. Members of both choir and chorus practiced fifth and sixth periods and the choir alone on Monday evenings preparing for these appearances.

During the fall, selections were presented at the Honor Society tapping and at a Woman's Club luncheon. At Thanksgiving and Christmas the choir sang seasonal songs over the intercom during homeroom period.

Joined by the chorus and graduates, the group presented portions of Handel's Messiah at the annual Christmas assembly. Christmastide music was presented at Myers Park Elementary School in a December concert. Among the many selections was 'Twas the Night Before Christmas which featured solo parts.

In January a musical was presented at the Parent Teacher Association meeting. Choir members took part in the district contest in Hickory and the state festival in Greensboro. Providing music for the baccalaureate service and commencement concluded their performances.

Six orchestra members named to All-State Orchestra

Musically inclined students had the opportunity to display their talent through participating in the Myers Park orchestra. Ably directed by Mr. Mims, the group spent many long hours in diligent practice.

Playing at two Honor Society tappings, the orchestra enhanced the induction ceremonies. They added to the beauty of the Christmas assembly by supplying the background music for the Messiah. In the spring one entire assembly was set aside to give the student body an opportunity to hear the arrangements which the orchestra worked on after Christmas. In addition, the group presented two evening concerts at Myers Park Elementary School, which provided entertainment for the community as well as the students, and provided the processional music at commencement.

Aside from their performances in Charlotte, the orchestra participated in various activities throughout the state. They travelled to Greensboro for the state music festival at which high school orchestras from all over North Carolina were rated on a competitive basis. Auditions were held in December for any high school students desiring to participate in the All-State orchestra. Six Myers Park orchestra members were chosen as members of this group which included the most outstanding high school musicians in the state.

Lettergirls, Millie Mustangs help boost school spirit

Taking part in a city-wide program, the band performed at an evening concert at Charlottetown Mall. Again serving the community, the group marched in the annual Veterans' Day parade and planned to participate in the Carousel parade. In February a concert was given at Myers Park Elementary School. Members practiced sixth period each day perfecting selections for this presentation. At the conclusion of this concert, the band had completed fourteen public appearances.

Members traveled to the All-State Band Clinic in Gastonia. The entire band competed in the state high school contest in Greensboro. Herb Siskron won a music scholarship in city-wide competition. Ken Avent, Charles Milford, Lucy Clark, Jim Caldwell, and David Berry represented Myers Park in the All-State Orchestra. In May, activities were concluded with the band's participation in the dedication of the new school auditorium.

UNITE IN SPIRIT Becomes M. P.'s motto; Cheerleaders encourage spirit

In their successful effort to build school spirit, the nine varsity cheerleaders adopted "Unite in Spirit" as their motto. These vivacious girls recreated student enthusiasm for all athletic events. From the sound of the opening buzzer until the final whistle, the cheerleaders energetically led the cheers of the spectators. Win or lose, nine peppy voices always proudly shouted, "I'm a Mustang, couldn't be prouder" at each game.

Pep rallies took a new twist under the planning of the cheerleaders. The killing of "eagles" or the hanging of "wildcats" were not unusual sights at the pep sessions.

With smiling faces and loud voices the junior varsity cheerleaders joined with the varsity yelle-belles to spur the Myers Park students to unite in spirit.

Exemplifying their pep and vivacity at an important basketball game, Jan Rouser and Charlotte Blackwell lead the students in cheering the Mustangs to victory.

Myers Park's 1961 football team enjoyed a very successful and exciting season highlighted by an outstanding passing attack and stubborn defense.

Captained by Billy Mallard and ably coached by Stuart Allen, Jack Sink, and head coach Gus Purcell, the 1961 Mustangs displayed proficiency in the use of the "shotgun offense." With Byron Slaughter, Johnny Short, and Bud Phillips receiving, the "shotgun offense" racked up impressive victories.

Myers Park's offense was directed by quarterback Jim Rogers. Termed "the most spectacular football player to perform for a Charlotte high school in many years," Rogers received a leg injury in mid-season, and remained on the sidelines for the remainder of the year. Coach Purcell described Rogers' misfortune "the worst thing that has ever happened to me in coaching." Rogers' accuracy completed 41 out of 66 passes for a total of 733 yards. The loss of Rogers was a severe blow to the Mustang offense, but understudy Jeff Beaver capably assumed the quarterback position for the Mustangs.

The 1961 squad voted Jim Rogers and Billy Mallard the Most Valuable Players. Byron Slaughter received the Most Outstanding Back award, while Pete Richardson received the award of Most Outstanding Lineman. Thom Blair managed the team for the third year, and the team picked Jeff Beaver as next year's captain.

The defensive unit, led by Earl Taylor (29), Byron Slaughter (33), and Pete Richardson (35) move in for the tackle.

Myers Park Gridders runners-up in Western 4-A Conference

After two early season losses to Albemarle and Garinger, the defensive line re-organized into an effective unit which, coupled with a spectacular offensive attack, netted a promising victory over Salisbury.

In a determined match with Salisbury, halfback Byron Slaughter scampered 88 yards for one touchdown and quarterback Jim Rogers hauled a Salisbury punt back 90 yards for another.

Launching on a winning streak, the Mustangs successively conquered South, Asheville, Gastonia, Harding, and East. Myers Park's famed "aerial attack" literally slaughtered South's Sabres in a 41-0 win. Traveling next to Asheville, the team won a costly victory. The 20-8 win over the Maroons was shadowed by the loss of quarterback Jim Rogers. Undaunted, the spirited Mustangs, aided by Hugh Martin and Billy Mallard who highlighted an outstanding defense, brought the mighty Gastonia Green Waves to their knees in a 14-12 victory.

Mustang Jayvees enjoy first undefeated season

Grinding out an undefeated season and a 7-0-0 record, Myers Park's junior varsity football team enjoyed their most successful year. Coached by Stuart Allen, the ponies practiced long and hard to polish a well-organized offense and defense which seized the city, county, and conference championships.

Quarterbacked by Jerry Kiser with able assistance from center Tommy Spencer and speedy halfback Mike Jones, the main offensive strong point of the Jayvee team was its efficient use of the wide-sweep. An excellent aerial display to receivers Steve Hodges and Phil Murray gained the hard-working team much valuable yardage and often resulted in spectacular touchdown runs.

Equally important in the Jayvee strategy was its powerful defense. The excellent linebacking of Bart Mauldin and Johnny Bristow, coupled with a strong defensive line, effectively thwarted the opponent's offensive thrusts.

While the outstanding defense held its opponents to a mere 7 points, the mighty junior varsity offense scored a total of 168 points.

Myers Park Harriers seize 1961 State Championship title

Combining team depth with spirit and determination, Myers Park's 1961 cross-country team concluded a most successful season by seizing the state championship title. Yielding only to the Davidson College Freshmen and the Wake Forest Freshmen, the Harriers ran away from their opponents in both the dual meets and the conference meet. During the season, the Mustangs utilized Freedom Park for workouts and dual meets before journeying to Chapel Hill for the state meet.

Breaking away from the starting line, runners vie for position in crowded conference meet. Myers Park finished first in this meet to become conference champion.

Dick Starnes sprints for the finish line in the dual meet with Garinger and South at Freedom Park. This rugged course furnished an excellent work-out area for the energetic Harriers.

Myers Park's 1962 wrestling team featured returning lettermen Bobby and Hank Boyd, Jack Hemphill, Earl Taylor, Mike White, and Fred Willis. Aided by Bill Convey, Bob Corry, Bob McGowan, Phil Chapman, and Ronnie Gleason, the Mustang matmen showed skill and determination as they downed their opponents in a tough schedule featuring home meets with Marion, Albemarle, South, and Appalachian.

Co-captained by Earl Taylor and Hank Boyd, the team was selected from sixty interested candidates. Heartened by a promising pre-season win over South, the team boasted entries in every class from Bill Convey in the 98-pound division to Bobby Boyd in the heavy weight classification.

Through the coaching of Stuart Allen, the wrestling squad has developed into a major sport. Interest in wrestling has carried over into the intramural program, where the sport has become an established intramural feature. The Jayvee matmen wrestled North and Country Day, showing much spirit and promise.

Myers Park's 1961-1962 basketball team, aided by a combination of height and speed, hustled through its schedule with win after win to prove coach George Powell's prediction that this year's courtmen would be "the best all-around team with the most potential in Myers Park's history."

The varsity hustlers skillfully employed balance and depth during the season. The Mustang scoring was led by Robert Cass, Billy Clark, and Steve Buck. Two capable junior guards, Pete Ayers and Teddy DuBose, rounded out the starting five, with sharpshooter Jack Sullivan seeing much late-season action.

Aided by a strong bench in Jeff Beaver, Ray Davis, George Elliott, Jon Logue, and Stuart McKaig, the strength of the Mustang offense and defense was indeed formidable. This year's squad was no one-man team; everyone shared in the scoring and rebounding.

In the state finals, they lost to Burlington, 79-65.

Myers Park's 1961-62 junior varsity basketball team relied mainly on the accurate shooting of Clyde Aiken, Billy Bane, and Jimmy Estes, and the reliable rebounding power of Steve Annas and Ricky Tatum. The smooth offensive attack of the Jayvees was occasionally broken by a fastbreak which netted the team valuable points.

Playing their best game in a 77-46 victory over Harding, the Jayvees racked up victories over South, North, Salisbury, West, Harding, and Garinger. The shooting accuracy and teamwork of the junior varsity basketball team were a keynote in this most successful season.

Supporting school activities was the main objective of the Monogram and Mustang Clubs. Dedication to the school enabled both groups to serve the student by planning service projects. Myers Park profited from their programs, leadership, and spirit throughout the year.

Members of the Monogram Club continued to sponsor the registration of student cars; they introduced parking stickers to avoid overcrowded parking lots. No matter what the weather, club members faithfully directed school traffic each day. By selling booster cards for all football games, the Monogram Club encouraged school spirit.

Participation was the key word of the Mustang Club. Spirited members made posters for football games and sold programs during basketball season. Many nights were spent in decorating the halls for upcoming games. To raise funds the club again sponsored the annual student-faculty basketball game. The Mustang Club contributed much time and effort to stimulate Myers Park spirit.

Team depth, spirit determine successful year for Seahorses

Co-captains Drew Taylor and Walton Rogers appear satisfied with work-out time trials prior to the Chapel Hill meet.

The 1961-62 Seahorses utilized team depth and spirit in an undefeated season. Myers Park's swimming squad has established itself as one of the Southeast's leading prep teams.

This year's squad, co-captained by Walton Rogers and Drew Taylor, tied for first place in the Southeastern Invitational Meet at Emory University, losing first place only because of a relay forfeit.

Seniors Jim Barnhardt, Jim Caldwell, Bob Turner, Herb Morrison, and Walton Rogers led the team with experience and skill in the four strokes and in the relays. Jim Caldwell and Walton Rogers broke pool records in the breaststroke and butterfly respectively.

In the Eastern Carolina Invitational Meet, the Seahorses captured first place with double the points of the second place team. In diving competition, Myers Park's divers seized first, second, third, and fourth places. Seniors Mike McLaughlin and Drew Taylor headed the diving for the team. All-American Taylor, whose diving won first place in North Carolina, and second-place McLaughlin added valuable points to the Mustangs' total scores.

Coached by All-American Jack McCann, Myers Park's 1962 swimming team made history in the state meet by amassing 102 points to shatter their previously-held record of 77.

Mac McGarity churns the water in the butterfly lap of the medley relay, a race which demands proficiency in all strokes.

Formation of girls' swimming team highlights G.R.A. sports

This year the Girls' Recreational Association started things going by sponsoring the first school dance. The sock-hop and fashion show was a big success. Before several athletic events, the G.R.A. members decorated the school halls. For a money-making project, the club sold Myers Park sweatshirts, nightshirts, and roller bags through the gym classes.

Girls benefit from the G.R.A. program by being able to participate in a wide variety of sports. Beginners are encouraged to learn new skills, and help is always available. Mrs. Rotan and Mrs. Holland, the club advisors, offered valuable tips to everyone. Membership is available to any Myers Park girl.

Chairmen of the twelve sports made up the G.R.A. Council, along with the officers and advisors. It is up to each chairman to plan the activities for her special sport and to make sure the plans are successfully carried out.

In the fall, sophomores played speedball, offered for the first time as a club activity. Volleyball teams competed in a round-robin tournament. In bowling, each girl strove for the high scoring prize.

Beginning this year, Myers Park had a girls' swimming team, a part of the G.R.A. Headed by co-captains Pam Barnett and Susie Gebhardt, the team had many promising swimmers, among them Beth Dobinson and Luray Lindgren.

Dr. Laird W. Lewis
Principal

Dr. Lewis named principal

Beginning his first year as principal of Myers Park, Dr. Laird Lewis worked diligently to insure effective co-ordination between faculty, students, and the curriculum. Because of his belief that the mature student participates in extra-curricular activities, he worked through the student council to promote worthwhile school functions. Serving on the scholarship committee, he has assisted many students in winning a variety of scholarships.

Most members of the administration served in dual capacities. Mr. George Powell served as assistant principal and basketball coach. Mr. Porter Sheppard, dean of boys, was responsible for the operation of the book store, snack bar, textbook rental program, and co-ordinated the overall athletic program. Besides co-ordinating all student activities, Miss Frances Gunter aided seniors with college selections and schedule problems.

The counseling program at Myers Park became such a demanding task that two full-time counselors were employed to help students with personal problems and to guide them in making mature vocational selections. Besides holding to their counseling positions, Miss Patsy Sifford and Mr. Ernest Feimster acted as sophomore and junior class advisors.

Administration and staff. Mr. George P. Powell, Assistant Principal; Miss Frances Marian Gunter, Dean of Girls; Mr. Porter Sheppard, Dean of Boys; Miss Patsy L. Sifford, Counselor; Mr. Ernest D. Feimster, Counselor; Mrs. Juanita Conger, Secretary; and Mrs. Patricia Pangle, Treasurer.

Auditorium completion provides additional arts facilities

New and returning faculty and staff members were Mrs. Cohan, Mrs. Conger, Mr. Crowell, Mrs. Holland, Mr. McCann, Mr. McNeely, Miss Nelson, Mrs. Newton, Mrs. Pangle, Miss Singleton, Mr. Sommerville, and Mr. Walker.

Although final plans for the new auditorium were approved in 1960, actual construction of the building was begun in the fall of 1961 with completion date set for May, 1962. The structure is designed to accommodate 850 persons with drama, instrumental, and choral music rooms.

Led by co-presidents Mr. and Mrs. Rick Hanner, the Parent-Teacher Association sponsored activities which achieved better parent-teacher relationships and increased parents' awareness of their children's studies and activities at school. The first PTA function was the annual teachers' luncheon. Two individual meetings were devoted to information concerning activities and academics. At the activities meeting student council and club representatives described the purposes and goals of the individual clubs. Dr. Lewis spoke concerning the academic requirements and the description of courses.

A unique feature this year was the college night. Because of previous limitations of college day, the new system of having college representatives meet with both junior and senior students at night proved to be more suitable.

Top: Miss Sifford and Mr. Feimster evaluate pupil's record.
Bottom: Mrs. McCracken, nurse, and a parent note flu trend.

Besides yielding additional classrooms, the auditorium will afford an appropriate location for drama and music productions.

Seventeen teachers complete advanced summer work

Many faculty members participate in local, area and state professional organizations. Of those holding statewide positions, Miss Akers serves on both the state and local curriculum committees for foreign language instruction. Mr. Booth is chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the North Carolina Industrial Arts Association; Mrs. Burgess is a member of the Advisory Council on Teacher Preparation. Mr. Purcell is a member of the NC Athletic Association board. Miss Newland serves on the state curriculum committee in English as well as chairman of the local Honors program in English. Mrs. Wright is vice-president of the North Carolina Classical League. In the North Carolina Education Association's South Piedmont district, Miss Harrison is president of the Business Education division, and Mrs. Lancaster is secretary of the Modern Languages department.

Faculty participates in local, state-wide professional organizations

Mr. Wallin is vice-president of the Math Teachers Association. On the local level, Mrs. Good works on the Curriculum Committee for the Social Studies, Mrs. Long is a member of the Curriculum Committee for the Academically Talented and the Curriculum Committee for English, while Miss Phifer serves as secretary of the NCEA unit. Miss Lafferty chairs the International Relations Committee of the local organization. An interest in professional growth, an awareness of the problems of modern educations, and a desire to improve both the welfare of teachers and the quality of instruction is shown in the varied professional activities of the faculty.

Many faculty members spent last summer at conferences, institutes, and workshops in specialized fields of education. Miss Gunter attended College Counselor Workshops at Duke, Emory, and Davidson. Miss Newland was a member of the Advanced Placement Conference in English. In the foreign language area, Mrs. Wright, Miss Foster, and Mrs. Lancaster participated in Language Workshops. Other teachers enrolled in workshops were Miss Hutchison, Mrs. Macon, Mr. Matus, Miss Harrison, Miss McInnes, and Mrs. Fletcher.

In order to complete work for credit on advanced college degrees and to learn educational trends, six teachers attended various summer schools. In addition, Mrs. Burgess, Miss Carmichael, Mr. Bridges, and Mr. Walker won scholarships for advanced work.

Senior curriculum centers on diversified, advanced courses

Exact measure requires delicate balance for Larry Harrison.

Because English was the only required subject, the senior curriculum provided a variety of courses. Advanced Placement English permitted a limited number of qualified seniors to study on a college freshman level; other senior English classes concentrated on British contributions to literature. World Literature, a survey of writing, brought out concepts and ideas of men and comparisons of literatures of different countries.

In view of increased demand for proficiency in one language, the Foreign Language Department offered a fourth year of French, Latin, and Spanish, emphasizing the rich literary backgrounds of the three countries.

The Math and Science Departments continued to accelerate their programs for seniors. While stressing the mechanical processes, college algebra laid particular emphasis on the theories of math. Senior Math explored the different phases of the field.

Concentrating on the principles of physics and the discoveries leading to them, the physics classes investigated such topics as mechanics and the atom. Biology II students traced the development of the plant and animal kingdoms and evolution of man. Senior Science offered a general summary course of all branches of physical sciences.

Problems of Democracy students examined past social, political, and economic issues in relation to such contemporary problems as elections.

College-level courses provide opportunity for advancement

Studying an exhibit concerning plant structure, Biology II students Kenny Godwin, Tavy Seawell, and Jo Granger compare relative differences of a monocotyledon and a dicotyledon through preserved successive stages of plant growth.

Class officers. Clockwise: Pres. Walton Rogers, V.P. Butch Allison, Treas. Freddy Sprock, and Sec. Eleanor Stowe.

Mary Casas and Rosann Alexander pick up information about achievement tests and check requirements for Agnes Scott.

Class Day officers. Clockwise: Prophet Skip Motley, Lawyer Robert Whitton, Historian Suzanne Bost, and Poet Karen Amen.

Seniors gain maturity by meeting challenges of final year at Myers Park

Many challenges faced the members of the senior class during their last year of high school. In academic work seniors were faced with advanced courses in Biology II, College Algebra, Advanced Placement English, World Literature, and fourth-year languages. The intensive study required by these courses was invaluable preparation for college. In extra-curricular activities seniors were forced to sustain the efforts which had won them top positions. Seniors capably served as club presidents, committee chairmen, and class and student government officers. The dynamic leadership of outstanding seniors challenged the rest of the class to give reliable support.

On the individual level seniors struggled to maintain a balance between the trivial and the serious, to limit their activities to worthwhile projects, and to find time for private reflections in the midst of the pressures of getting into college. The reality of graduation brought the understanding that a Mother's Day week-end attitude could not last forever. In overcoming the pressures and problems of high school life seniors received preparation for the greater complexities which college and job would offer.

With two required subjects, juniors have varied programs

Using a model, Ann Hall displays figure Graham Denton draws.

The junior curriculum provided a number of advanced courses in most departments. Only two required courses, English and American history, left greater freedom of inquiry for the juniors.

The junior English course stressed composition with a general review of grammar. American poetry and prose focused the student's attention on our own literary background.

Tracing America's growth as a nation with special interest on the fundamentals of democracy, the American history student learned to evaluate in better prospective present problems.

For those students who had previously taken SMSG geometry, an advanced course provided a solid geometry and trigonometry course supplemented with a brief study of analytical geometry.

With emphasis on fundamental facts, theories, and symbolic language, chemistry permitted the inquisitive student to gain a better knowledge of the composition of substances and the transformations they undergo.

In its third year, the language laboratory made it possible for students to gain proficiency in understanding and speaking a foreign language.

Displays vivify history for Barbara Dowd and Diek Starnes.

Sense of confidence spurs juniors to successful year

Confidence replaced hesitancy in the attitudes of juniors as they entered their second year at Myers Park. Juniors knew what they were doing and soon settled into the school routine. The year passed easily and calmly for the most part. Juniors had lost the naivete of their sophomore year, but they were still not expected to show the maturity of seniors. However, the pressures of college procedures often seemed overwhelming. The frightening battery of PSAT's, National Merits, and first college boards were rather nerveracking. But by studying consistently juniors were well-prepared for these tests and even made the discovery that knowledge meant more than a ticket to college. During the year juniors served Myers Park by supporting school activities and participating in clubs and sports. By the end of the year, Honor Society tapping, junior marshal selections, and student government elections revealed leaders ready to help their class meet the challenges which their senior year would bring.

Conferences with college delegates profit juniors

On November 15 juniors were allowed to attend College Night. In the past only seniors have attended the event. But because several decisions about college must often be made before the senior year, juniors were given the opportunity to confer with college representatives early.

Approximately sixty colleges sent delegates. Although most of the colleges represented were North Carolina schools, some out-of-state colleges, such as Agnes Scott and Randolph Macon, also sent delegates. The representatives spoke about admissions requirements, academic work, and extra-curricular activities.

College Night was a valuable experience for many juniors because it enabled them to get first-hand information about college admissions and college life.

Attentive juniors get helpful information about Duke from the representative during College Night.

Finalists, Caroline Elliot, Sally Pennigar, Nancy Manning, and Richard McHenry, discuss countries they may visit.

AFS finalists have chance of spending summer abroad

Early in October interested juniors attended a meeting held by Myers Park's American Field Service advisors, Miss Phifer and Miss Singleton. At the meeting juniors received applications and were told the purpose of the AFS — to increase understanding of the United States abroad by sending teenagers to live with a foreign family. Four finalists were selected from Myers Park. Some possible homes for these finalists are South and Central America, Europe, the Middle East, the Far East, Africa, Australia, and New Zealand. In these places AFS students, who have returned home after living for a year in the United States, search for and interview families interested in offering their hospitality to an American teenager. Myers Park's four finalists realize the value of the AFS program, and should they become exchange students, hope to fulfill its purpose.

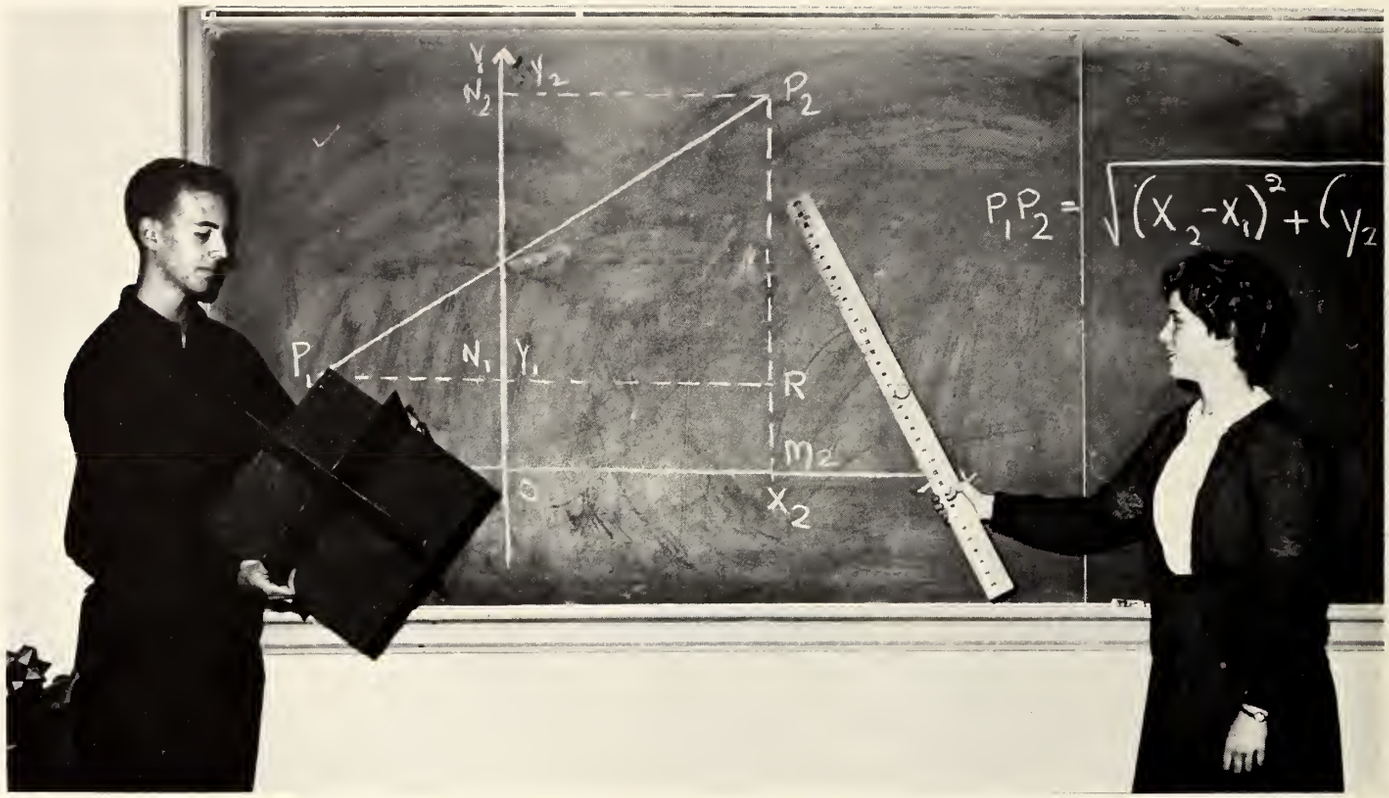
Miss Gunter meets with juniors in the library to discuss college boards, choice of colleges, and entrance requirements.

October in preparation for college board examinations



While George Edwards holds a figure representing a basic formula, Julia Reed explains the analytical formula on the board.

Requisites permit few electives for sophomore schedule

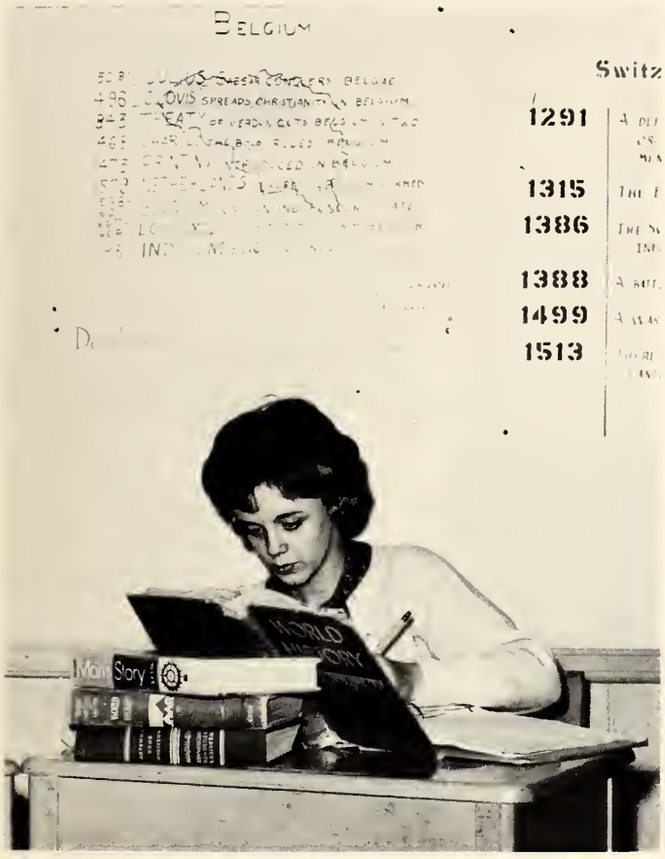
As Moreen Rogan views slide, Stephen Horney draws lab sheet.

More standardized than the others, the Sophomore curriculum consisted mainly of required courses. Three main subject areas offered the student an opportunity to explore the language arts, science and math, and physical education.

Covering English fundamentals thoroughly, the sophomore English classes analyzed selected literary works to learn critical thinking and evaluation. Dealing with such large ideas as the ancient ideals of citizenship, world history was organized in interpretative units. Many sophomores entered the second or third year course in the study of a foreign language.

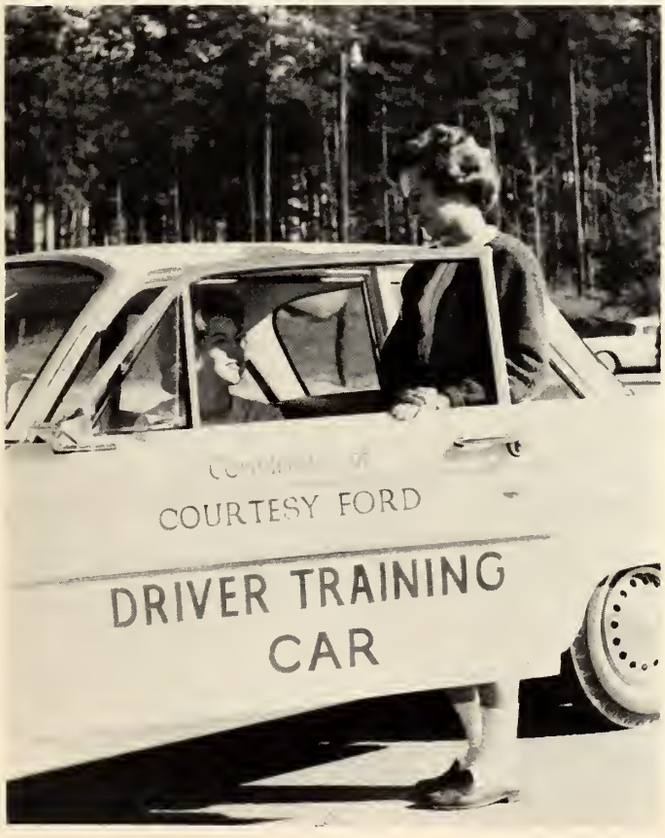
Emphasizing structure, function, and adaptation, the general biology course probed the plant and animal kingdoms. The increase in the number of advanced math students brought about an expansion in the SMSG geometry program while regular plane geometry offered the more traditional study of rectilinear and other plane figures.

Physical education enabled students to participate in a variety of sports not only to learn fundamental skills, but also to learn to exercise correctly. Driver Education taught knowledge concerning the car, the rules of the road, and the proper operation of the vehicle.



Extensive world history parallel required of Nancy Lineberger.

Elise McClung prepares to take the wheel from Karen Dunlap.



Jimmy Estes, Monroe Gilmour, Lawrence Naumoff vie for ball.

Sophomores adjust to change from junior to senior high

Adjustment to a new school seemed to be a major task facing the incoming sophomores. One area which required adaptation was academics. They found more difficult courses which demanded more hours of homework and they experienced for the first time the two-hour exam. The bewildering number of available outside activities made it easy for sophomores to get involved in so many projects that real accomplishment in any was impossible. Disconcerting was the vast number of unfamiliar faces since sophomores enter from three junior highs. In order to give them more time to become acquainted with the other members of their class, elections were postponed until second semester.

Soon, however, they were absorbed into the different facets of high school life and took pride in the fact that they were now an integral part of a diversified school program. An increase in assurance was evident during the year, and by May sophomores were anticipating their junior year with confidence.

Students were able to round out their course of study with non-academic electives of both practical and purely expressive nature.

Courses for students interested in business training ranged from typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping to economics. General office practice students learned operation of the basic business machines. Distributive Education enabled qualified students to gain classroom and necessary on-the-job training.

Learning the operation and use of hand tools, woodworking and metal machines, the industrial arts students completed original projects, while mechanical drawing students concentrated on architectural drafting.

Through the home economics courses, including foods and clothing, girls gained skills in the preparation of food, study of nutrition, and design and construction of garments. The family living course was designed as a socialogical study of the home.

For better understanding of interior design, advertising, and general art, students executed projects relating to these aspects of art.

Participating in both school and community concerts, the vocal and instrumental music courses allowed talented students to develop their expressive abilities.

Other electives included Bible I and II which examined different aspects of the Old and New Testament, Physical Education II for boys which stressed a higher proficiency level, and public speaking which emphasized the fundamentals of good oratory.

Mechanical drawing requires both accurate and legible work.

Cooking is but one skill learned in foods by Naomi Kraft.

Homecoming, Christmas dances highlight fall activities

Senior Susan Barnette collects books for morning classes as she begins typical day.

Dance committee members spent much time and effort in planning the Homecoming and Christmas dances. At the Homecoming dance in November, the traditional green and white scheme was used with the addition of bright fall colors to give a festive mood to a delightful occasion. In December the committee again succeeded in transforming the cafeteria into a wonderland, with the "Holly Hop."

Fourth period finds Susan translating classical French literature in Mrs. Cox's third year French class.

Joan Norton, Sara Alexander, Lloyd Miller, and Caldwell Cline are amid a snowy wonderland at the "Holly Hop."

Open houses after several basketball games provide enjoyment for both Myers Parkers and their guests.

Basketball season open houses promote inter-school harmony

During basketball season the Student Council with the aid of several school clubs planned open houses after four home games in order to promote good relations among the local schools. Myers Park's own "Rivieras" provided lively music for these informal dances which proved not only to be a great deal of fun for everyone, but also a chance to make many new friends.

Lunchtime provides a welcome break in class routine and an opportunity to socialize with friends.

Susan completes her day in the 'Spark publications room where she works as business manager for the school newspaper.

Outstanding students receive

Chosen to represent Myers Park at Winthrop College as Miss Hi-Miss was outstanding senior, Wonda Moseley.

Each year those students who have striven continually to serve their school, and who are among the top scholars in their class are recognized for their efforts. At the close of his junior year Billy Clark received the award given annually to an outstanding boy by the Harvard Club, based on Scholarship, Character, and Leadership. Gay Williams received a similar award presented by the Daughter's of the American Revolution. Gay and Billy also showed the popularity achieved among fellow students when they were elected by the senior class to be Mr. and Miss Myers Park.

"The Johnsonian," the student newspaper of Winthrop College, chose Wonda Moseley to hold the title of Miss Hi-Miss. The newspaper selected the recipient of the honor on the basis of Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Personality.

The Carousel Princess was lovely Jane Morrison, named over a group of senior girls to become the first junior to represent Myers Park in the Christmas Parade.

Boys of the senior class voted Junior Rotarians were Billy Clark, Pete Richardson, Walton Rogers, Freddy Sprock, Robert Whitton, and Butch Allison.

Leadership, Service, Dependability, and Patriotism are exemplified by Gay Williams, recipient of the D.A.R. award.

A solitary student observes the changing countenance of Myers Park Campus with the changing seasons of the year.

The Overview: A New Era Begins in the Life of Myers Park

Lees-McRae representative talks to girls at college night.

Excitement mounts as students cheer their team to victory.

From the very beginning, this year was labeled as different. It was the beginning of a new era of progress, a new decade in the history of a new Myers Park. Each class faced a year of challenge — sophomores, to translate ideals into tradition; juniors, to put to task their year of experience to avail their years of opportunity; seniors, to uphold their responsibility of setting the pace for this new era.

This was a year of achievement academically and athletically. The seniors seemed to meet their challenge with a new-felt enthusiasm, while sophomores and juniors united behind them with a promise of greatness yet to come. Outstanding scholars received honors and awards which brought the admiration of all and the incentive to work even harder. Athletes broke records, piled up victories. There seemed to be a new and invigorating force ever present spurring each student on to a new and better Myers Park. Our faculty and advisors through their long hours of counciling and guidance were the major factor in keeping this force alive in each student even in the most discouraging moments.

Larry Vincent and Tina Diamaduros use library resources.

Jubilant, Alan Henderson exhibits the feeling of many a Myers Park senior leaving Ovens Auditorium after graduation.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Every memory of Myers Park for the year 1961-1962 would be impossible to capture in the 176 pages of the '62 Mustang. However, without the cooperation and financial assistance of many people, the Mustang could not have become a reality. We feel that we are indeed fortunate in having such interested advertisers and sponsors, and we know that the students of Myers Park will enjoy patronizing our advertisers.

We are also indebted to the following for their contributions:

Mr. Frank Fleming, Consultant, Washburn Printing Company;

Mr. Price Coursey, Consultant, Charlotte Engraving Company;

Mr. Earl Powell, Plant Manager, Washburn Printing Company;

Mr. Charles Smith, Art Consultant, Charlotte Engraving Company;

Mr. George Barbers, Kingskraft Cover Company;

Mrs. Virginia Christenbury, Mrs. Jean Howarth, Mrs. Genevieve Stewart, Beverly Studio, senior portraits;

Mr. Bill Renfrow, Delmar Studios, underclass portraits;

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Aull, Aull Studio, beauty portraits;

Dr. Lewis and the Myers Park faculty;

The 1962 Staff and Homeroom Representatives;

Mrs. Elizabeth Cohan;

Mr. Leslie Browne;

Mr. Henry Fonda, beauty judge;

The Luau Restaurant.
